Intermodal Transport

With our Intermodal transport service, which can be summarized as a mode of transport performed using two or more modes of transport with the same transport vehicle and in which the loads in the vehicle are not subjected to any handling during mode changes, as well as taking advantage of cost and many other advantages by producing up to 75% less carbon emissions than road transport, you can contribute to reducing the damage to our environment.

In the intermodal transport model, which is supported by the European Union and is increasingly in demand by global customers due to its environmental impact, loads from various regions in Turkey are transported by road to the ports of Istanbul, Izmir and Mersin. The trailer leaving the tow truck is transported by RO-RO to Trieste.

Our trailers and containers are transported from Trieste to the stations closest to the point of delivery by loading on wagons and driven on the highway to the final destination.

Advantages

- ✓ It is an ecological type of transport, as it provides up to 75% lower CO2 emissions compared to road transport.
- ✓ Thanks to this transport model, thousands of hectares of forest are saved from extinction every year.
- ✓ Regular loading, handling and unloading, control and follow-up opportunities as well as fixed price advantage.
- ✓ Less affected than road transport by air and road conditions.
- ✓ Not affected by problems and waiting times at border crossings
